5.2 Bloom

Descendants of David Bloom

Generation No. 1

1. DAVID<sup>1</sup> BLOOM died 1850 in Illinois. He married POLLY RUTTER.

Notes for DAVID BLOOM:

David Bloom was originally a Hessian soldier from Stuttgart, Germany. Deserted to Washington's army. Settled in Lancaster, Penn.

Washington Crossing State Park, two parks on the Pennsylvania and New Jersey shores of the Delaware River 8 miles (13 km) northwest of Trenton. The parks mark the site where, in a blinding snowstorm on the night of Dec. 25, 1776, General George Washington crossed the river with 2,400 colonial troops and captured 1,000 Hessian mercenaries. The Pennsylvania park has an area of 478 acres (193 hectares); the New Jersey park, 369 acres (149 hectares). A memorial building at the site houses the David Library of the American Revolution. Other historic landmarks are Bowman's Hill Observation Tower on the site of the Continental Army's lookout station; the Memorial Flagstaff, marking the graves of Continental troops who died there; and the Point of Embarkation.

Across the bridge in the New Jersey park are the Old Barracks, built in 1758 and successively occupied by British, Hessian, and colonial troops. Other features are the Trenton Battle Monument, a 155-foot (47-metre) granite shaft marking the spot where the colonial artillery opened fire on Trenton, and McKonkey Ferry Museum, in a building that supposedly sheltered Washington and some of his men after the historic crossing.

Lancaster, city, seat of Lancaster county, southeastern Pennsylvania, U.S., and the centre of a metropolitan area comprising a number of small towns and boroughs, 71 miles (114 km) west of Philadelphia. The original site on Conestoga Creek, known as Gibson's Pasture, or Hickory Town, was made the county seat when Lancaster county (named for the English city and shire) was created in 1729. During the American Revolution, the Continental Congress, fleeing from Philadelphia, held a one-day session there (Sept. 27, 1777), and the Supreme Executive Council of Pennsylvania took refuge in the city for nine months in 1777-78. Lancaster was considered for the new national capital in 1790. From 1799 to 1812 it was the capital of Pennsylvania.

The stone-surfaced turnpike from Lancaster to Philadelphia was completed in 1794. President James Buchanan lived in Lancaster, and his home, Wheatland (1828), has been restored; he is buried in Woodward Hill Cemetery. Thaddeus Stevens, Abolitionist congressman, also lived in the city; he is buried in a small cemetery amid the graves of blacks. The 18th-century Conestoga wagon (symbol of the pioneers' trek westward) and the Pennsylvania (Kentucky) rifle were produced in Lancaster, which after the Revolution became an iron-founding centre. It was in Lancaster that F.W. Woolworth opened (1879-80) his first successful "5-and-10 cent" store. The city's modern diversified economy is balanced between agriculture (cattle, dairy products, grain, and tobacco), trade, and industry. Manufactures included watches, linoleum, electrical products, and farm machinery.

In the heart of the Pennsylvania Dutch country, Lancaster's residents include members of the Amish, Mennonite, and Dunkard churches, distinguished by their black, buttonless attire and nonuse of modern devices. The restored Hans Herr House (1719) is an early example of medieval Germanic architecture; it was used as a Mennonite meetinghouse. The state's agricultural history is depicted at the nearby Amish Farm and House and the Pennsylvania Farm Museum of Landis Valley. Franklin and Marshall College was founded in 1787, and Lancaster Bible College was founded in 1933. Also nearby is the Ephrata Cloister, site of a German monastic community, which flourished in the mid-18th century. Inc. borough, 1742; city, 1818. Pop. (1990) 55,551; Lancaster MSA, 422,822; (1994 est.) city, 57,721; (1995 est.) Lancaster MSA, 447,521.

Notes for FLOYD JOHNSTON:

Floyd Johnston - son of John Arthur J. and Sadie Gray - was 13 (?) when John Arthur remarried. His second wife - Ruth Erickson - was young, and Floyd was too much for her to deal with, so Floyd went to live with Aunt Mable Johnston (who lived in the Octagon house in Wilmington).

Lester Walter Johnston met Floyd (who was 2-3 yrs older than LWJ) when Floyd came over to Walter Irvin Johnston's to play.

Aunt Mable's was a favorite place for the nephews to visit.

(Aunt Mable took care of Wm. I. Johnston in his old age and never married. Mable was postmistress in Wilmington. She came to Calif. in late 30's. She spent a lot of time with Harold Charter. She got a housekeeping job with Bush's in Pleasenton and moved there. She died while visiting Harold or Evertt's home in Richmond (near Potrero Av.) of a ruptured aorta.)

When Lester Walter Johnston started Joliet High School, Floyd was driving to Joliet Jr. College and LWJ rode to Joliet with Floyd for a year.

Dear Lucy & Emma;

" Tell Alvah it was Catherine Snuffer that Aunt Martha Gray used to tell me about speaking such good German. She may have been born in Germany and married Anthony after she came to this country. Jimmie Redman came very near naming on of his boys Anthony. I wish he had."

"Aunt Zena used to talk of Tony Sowder, who built himself a cave where he could retire to for peace and quite in case he wanted to. He is probably the same [as Antony Sowder]. Sometimes I wish he had handed it down to future generations. I could use it sometimes."

Roda Gray was the wife of Jacob Sowder (b. 1819), who was the father of

William James Sowder, who was the father of Lona

Sowder, who was the mother of Ann (Redmon) Johnston.

From notes of Lelia or Lula Sowder:

"My grandmother (Rhoda Gray Sowder) had lost her husband in the Civil War and had three sons and a daughter. The oldest - William Sowder - was 8 yrs. old, then Peter, Martha Ann and John an infant to bring up alone. She was known over the country as a remarkable woman - to bring up four children, run the farm and make a good living. She is said to have ridden her horse over the farm to direct the hired help and her sons when they were old.

They grew up to be good and respected men. As each one married she gave him his share of the land on which to build a house and rear his family. Since the land joined - and three married - one stayed with his mother - it could have been called the "Sowder Compound".

From "The Messenger of Truth: - July, 1913 - Obituaries:

Rhoda Sowder was born September 19, 1824 - died April 7, 1913, making her stay on earth 88 years, 6 months, and 18 days. She was the youngest of a family of fourteen children. Her father was Joseph Gray, from England; her mother whose maiden name was Mary Howard, was of English and French decent. Both families were well know pioneer stock.

Rhoda was married to Jacob Sowder at the age of twenty-four years, and never moved but one time during her life, and that we from her parents's home to where she lived and died. Their family consisted of four children, W. J. Sowder, who died in Roanoke three years ago, Peter A. Sowder, who lives at the home place, Mrs. W. B. Gray of Graysville, and John Sowder, now living in Roanoke County. Her husband, Jacob Sowder, died in Richmond in the War in 1862. He was a true patriotic Southern soldier. [Thereafter] She lived with her son, Peter A. Sowder. Mrs. Sowder was a remarkable woman, full of energy, industry and economy, and cared for her family during the War, making a good living during those dark gloomy years. She was plain of speech and possessed a wonderful memory. Her logical argument on the cause of the War and its effects was such as would throw in the shade many men of intelligence. She was truthful and honest, and had but little respect for any one who disregarded either.
